Nazis Trapped In River Fight, Soviet Claims

Berezina Waterway Called Death Net for Invaders; Reds Roll Back Assaults, Is Moscow Declaration

(By the Associated Press)

The Berezina river sector, point of deepest German penetration of Russia, has been turned into a watery death trap for the invaders, Moscow reported today, and thousands of Germans caught there are among the nearly 750,000 losses estimated by Russians as the price of the two-week-old invasion.

The Red army declared its stand along the Berezina and Druja waterways had rolled back terrific German assaults, with Germans caught in a destructive hail of artillery and machine-gun fire in the very waters there to be carried, wounded or dying, downstream.

This, to credit the Russian reports, was the modern counterpart of the rout of Napoleon—with variations. Napoleon's "grande armee" was cut to pieces on the bloody Berezina in its 1812 flight from Moscow. Now, the Germans are meeting fierce resistance there on the way to Moscow.

Not far east of the Berezina and the waterway system to the north which includes the Druja, lies the Stalin line—the Red army's principal fortifications.

By the German version, panzer columns which flanked France's Maginot line were rolling toward it for their major test against the might of the Soviet Union.

200-Mile Battlefront
The center of the fiercest fighting and the direct threat to Moscow apparently extended north from Bobruisk through Borisov on the Berezina to almost a 200-mile battlefront, anchored at the north on the junction of the Latvian and old Russian frontiers.

The Russians earlier said the fighting extended past Lepel on the Berezina canal, 40 miles north of Borisov. The town of Druja, on the stream of the same name, is 60 miles further north and lies east of Dvinsk.

The Germans claim to have reached the Latvian frontier of old Russia after a march through Lithuania and Latvia, two of the Baltic states Russia had absorbed as a buffer zone. The Russians have acknowledged a rectification of their lines in the Latvian border region.

Moscow and Berlin accounts of how close the hard-driven German spearheads were to the deep Russian defense belt differed, but the test appeared to be shaping up on the shortest line to Moscow—east of Dvinsk, and between the Berezina and Dnepr rivers toward Mogilev and Vitebsk.

Three-day Assault Fails
A Russian communique declared the Germans had been unable to cross the Berezina despite three days of unceasing assault, but acknowledged the withdrawal of Red troops under heavy pressure in the lake-dotted region to the north.

In this sector, the Russians declared, they were forced back from the Dvinsk area toward the fortification system inside old Russia south of Pskov, and from Lepel in northern White Russia, within 70 miles of the forts centered about Vitebsk.

On the southern front the Red army was reported in Moscow to be

ASKS PUBLIC AID IN MOVING TRAFFIC

In an effort to expedite weekend holiday traffic through Salem's downtown section tomorrow afternoon and evening, Chief of Police Ralph Stoffer appealed to Salem residents to refrain from driving downtown at that time if possible.

Police are expected to be on duty to direct traffic. Automobiles will be prohibited from entering State st. at Lundy and from N. Broadway in an attempt to prevent traffic jams, the chief said.

The chief took to task persons who park their automobiles on downtown State st. just to watch other automobiles and pedestrians pass by.

YOUTH SHOT BY VILLAGE MARSHAL

Confesses Firing Bullet Which Killed Cedarville Boy, 19

(By Associated Press)
CEDARVILLE, July 5.—Prosecutor Marcus Shoup announced today that Hayes A. McLean, 72-year-old town marshal, confessed he shot and killed Walter Collins as the 19-year-old boy discharged fireworks.

The marshal, breaking down after several hours' questioning, asserted he had been irritated by fireworks shooters, but did not intend to kill the youngster, the prosecutor said.

Shoots at Tires

McLean shot his 38 caliber pistol at the tires of an automobile, in which Collins was riding with five companions, Thursday night, the marshal related, but the bullet penetrated the auto window and caromed into the boy's head.

McLean, who has been marshal 28 years, was released on his own recognizance but was expected to provide bond today. The prosecutor said some homicide charge would be filed against him, but added that it would not be first or second degree murder because he felt the slaying was not premeditated.

The marshal, when first summoned to investigate the shooting, said he was in bed when it occurred. He later was suspected when two companions of the slain boy—Morton Thayer, 16, and Pat McQuinn, 14—said they saw a flash from the McLean yard.

Denies Shooting, At First
McLean at first denied knowledge of the shooting. Then two investigators from the state bureau of criminal investigation at the London prison farm made a test of the marshal's hand which showed, they said, that he had discharged

DELAY LOOMS ON PROPOSED DRAFT CHANGE

Marshall's Recommendations Will Be Studied At White House

SENATE LEADERS DIFFER IN VIEWS

Opinion Is That No Action Will Be Taken Until Necessary

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 5.—Word spread in the senate today that General George C. Marshall's sweeping recommendations for revision of the draft laws might be put aside for awhile.

This report, originated by an administration lieutenant who asked not to be quoted by name, circulated at the capitol while Senator McNary (R-Ore), minority leader, voiced his outspoken opposition to Marshall's proposal for keeping selectees and national guardsmen in service beyond one year and for lifting the ban against sending draftees out of this hemisphere.

Patterson Approves

On the other hand, Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war, approved the recommendations which the chief of staff made Thursday. Patterson said he did not know whether such steps would be necessary, but added that "we should have an army prepared for whatever emergency we may meet."

Expressing the views that Marshall's recommendations would require considerable study by the White House before they could be offered to congress, an administration spokesman added that they probably would be withheld until overwhelming congressional approval was assumed. Such approval, he added, could not be obtained at present and probably would be possible only if there were some new threat to American security.

McNary told reporters he saw "nothing in the present emergency to justify the use of American soldiers anywhere beyond the United States and its possessions."

"My recollection is," the Oregon senator continued, "that there was a clear understanding that the selectees would not be kept in service more than a year."

Opponents Confident

Opponents of the administration generally expressed confidence that the plan could be defeated, and Senator Adams (D-Col) declared that "in substance, a vote to give that authority would be a vote for authority to make war."

The Marshall recommendations probably will be discussed by President Roosevelt and legislative leaders at a White House conference Monday, congressional authorities reported. Democratic Leader Barkley of the Senate, who has been recuperating from an illness, was expected to return in time for the conference.

Traffic accidents in the Salem district over the Fourth left at least 17 injured and, as a result, state highway patrolmen again appealed for caution on the part of motorists as the continued heavy flow of traffic is expected for the balance of the holiday weekend.

A two-car collision on the Damascus road brought injuries to six Salem persons and a Youngstown man, while five Akron residents were injured when their car turned over on Route 45 and landed in a creek, near Eagleton's Glen.

Four Clevelanders were injured when their car overturned on the Benton road.

Three crashes occurred in which no one was hurt.

22 KILLED IS FRIDAY'S TOLL

Traffic Takes 14, Drownings 4; Guns 3; One Falls From Roller Coaster

(By Associated Press)
At least 22 persons were killed in the first day of Ohio's extended Fourth of July holiday weekend, a survey showed today.

Fourteen were victims of traffic mishaps, four drowned, three were shot and a boy fell from a roller coaster. Not a single fatality was blamed on fireworks.

Two automobile crashes claimed four lives. At Warren, Mrs. W. H. Tilton and her son, Howard, 26, were killed when their automobile crashed into a house. William C. Williams, 21, of Dunbar, W. Va., and Edward Moore, 19, of Haskins, O., were killed in a head-on crash near Portsmouth.

An assailant who Sheriff Walton Spahr said evidently was angered by youths discharging fireworks shot and killed Wallace Collins, 19, at Cedarville. There was no clue as to the identity of the killer.

Spahr said Eddie Stark, 25, was shot and killed by police at Columbus when he refused to halt for questioning about the holding of a soldier. At Cleveland, 6-year-old Charles Neuberger was killed by a rifle, police said, while playing with a neighbor boy.

George Brandon, 53, a tool designer for the Goodyear Aircraft Co., fell from a boat and drowned in West reservoir at Akron. At Dayton, a boat struck a log in the Miami river, upset, and Harry L. Keener, 38, drowned. Donald Ramsen, 33, perished when a boat capsized in the Maumee river near Toledo, and Lawrence Leitwen, Jr., 14, of Columbus, slipped into a creek near Circleville and drowned.

TWO ARE KILLED IN CANFIELD CRASH

Alliance Girl, N. Philadelphia Man Are Victims In Collision

An Alliance girl and a New Philadelphia man were injured fatally in a two-car collision at the junction of Routes 62 and 46, a mile and a half north of Canfield, shortly after midnight.

The dead are Miss Ann Yoho, 24, of 320 E. Oxford st., Alliance, and Arthur Evans, 47, of New Philadelphia.

They died in the Youngstown South Side hospital soon after the accident which occurred at what is known as Herbert's Corners. Mahoning county deputy sheriffs investigated the crash.

Miss Jennetta Yoho, a sister of one of the victims, and Donald Evans, 20, a son of the man who was killed, were the drivers.

Jennetta Yoho is in South Side hospital suffering from a concussion and shock. Virginia Carlisle, 22, of Alliance, who was in the Yoho car, received minor injuries.

Donald Evans received an injury to his knee. His mother, Mrs. Arthur Evans, suffered a foot injury. A daughter, Sara Evans, and Viola Affolter of New Philadelphia, escaped uninjured.

WHAT CAN THE PUBLIC DO?

Is it possible that too much confidence is placed in the American public?

It must wake up, about the politicians. It must realize its danger. It must quit being complacent. It must do this and it must do that.

Frankly, that huge amorphous conglomeration of human beings known as the public doesn't know what the politicians are talking about. Or perhaps, with its instinct for spotting hot air being peddled as wisdom, the public is conscious of some buck passing being carried on at popular expense.

The public realizes that the power to act and the power to lead resides in the instrumentalities of government that it supports for that purpose; that is the theory of government. In a representative democracy, the public retains the privilege of choosing its government officers and reserves to itself the right to renew or not to renew their mandate. But in itself the public cannot initiate action, except by petition, which is merely a way of stimulating the already existing agencies of collective action.

Thus, when spokesmen for the government shout that the public must wake up, must face its dangers, must quit being complacent and must act, they are denying the theory under which they hold their jobs. It is submitted that as far as the present emergency is concerned the American public stands ready to do whatever may be necessary; it can do no more.

It voted to retain the Roosevelt administration in office on the theory that it would be dangerous to change horses in mid-stream. It voted to give the administration a massive working majority in congress. It has raised no considerable objection to any move favored by the administration to increase the margin of national security in an unsettled world. It has given its young men to the government for a program of military training. It has taken its places in the workshops, the offices, and the fields of America to produce the materials of national defense. It has faced the prospect of heavy taxation without flinching. In effect, it has done voluntarily in the space of a year what easily might have taken from three to four years if there had been widespread popular dissent to the official policy of preparedness.

The American public wants dynamic leadership. It is ready to take the chance of mistakes for the sake of accomplishing what needs to be accomplished in the field of national security. It cannot devise grand strategy nor can it effectuate national policy, but it can and will support with its energy all moves that are necessary to accomplish these things. Far from feeling flattered when government officials talk as though they were waiting for the public to wake up, the public is deeply disturbed. It never was wider awake in the history of the country; it never was more acutely aware of the responsibility of the people, themselves, to pitch in and do everything necessary to redeem their principles from the clutch of the totalitarians and statists.

It is fitting that government officials should think and speak at length about public confidence when they are seeking office. It is essential that they do everything in their power to retain public confidence when they have been rewarded with office. Their mandate is not to scourge the public for failing to do what they were elected to do. They alone have the power of action.

DOWN TO EARTH

Two things are bringing the United States down to earth in a hurry. The Russian fighting machine, best on the continent since collapse of the French army, is no match for Germany's well trained, well seasoned troops. The United States army has been holding training maneuvers in the south.

Given the same amount of equipment as is available to the Russians, the United States army still would be no match at all for a first class army. It doesn't have the trained officers to do the job. Without adequate equipment, which is its present plight, it wouldn't even be a match for a second class army.

Events during the year since France crumbled under Germany's onslaught have conspired to make Americans realize they aren't nearly so tough as they need to be in an upset world for the sake of their security. They also have made reasonably plain how tough a nation needs to be to have security, which is just a little tougher than its toughest possible antagonist, or coalition of antagonists.

It does not mean that the United States must have exactly the same kind of a fighting machine as Germany's. Imitation has been the curse of that militant country's unimaginative opponents. It does mean that the United States must be able to seize and maintain the initiative whenever and wherever that becomes necessary to protect its territory and interests. Nothing better could have happened to national defense than the discouraging reports from southern training maneuvers coupled with reports of Russia's huge, well equipped army falling back in the face of the latest German conquest. The proportions of the job are plain now.

THE SUN NEVER SETS ETC.

Various interpretations of what it means to move Archibald P. Wavell, Great Britain's most publicized general, to India and replace him in the middle east with Claude Archibald, a relatively obscure but apparently capable commander, all seem to lead to the same conclusion. No one knows, except a few men in Downing Street, and they won't tell.

But whether Gen. Wavell is being kicked upstairs or downstairs, the exchange makes one thing quite clear that, fortunately, never was obscure. The fact that the sun never sets on the British empire is considerably more than a sentimental boast. It is one of the fundamental facts of international relations. Gen. Wavell, a very good military man, is not being sent to India to do nothing. India is part of the strength of the British empire.

To destroy the empire, Germany and its satellites must fight all the way from the arctic to the antarctic, on land, on sea, in the air, on four continents and innumerable islands. If there were nothing to the empire but the little island, the world would now be over to all intents and purposes, a fact that probably irritates Adolf Hitler like a handful of cracker crumbs in a rumpled bed on a hot night.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, July 5

A DAY of extraordinary excitement and activity, with every department of life quickened to high tempo and possibly daring achievement, judging by the long chain of planetary aspects operating intensively. In every phase of living this intensity prevails, and this despite a very tenacious obstacle, delays or obstruction threatening to undermine or frustrate desired objectives. These will be vanquished by determined attack, prudence, and wisdom, with help from large organizations or public bodies. Friendship, social and humane factors have high potency in promoting major enterprises, public and private.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of extraordinary excitement, commotion and achievement, with things moving to desired ends under high pressure and greatly stimulated initiative and aggressiveness. This accompanied by stubborn efforts to thwart, delay, frustrate and defeat, probably forcing change of plans, methods and possibly environs. But all menace may be successfully coped with by assistance from high places. Friendship, social standing, personal popularity are powerful factors for progress and achievement. Utilize these graciously.

A child born on this day should be splendidly endowed with many talents and forces for outstanding or unique success, rising above tenacious obstacles, handicap or probably personal idiosyncrasy, winning by its gracious social and humane qualities and sympathies.

For Sunday, July 6

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds testimony of possible opportunities for rising to heights of ambition and aspiration, against certain deceptive or strange appearances, by strict adherence to principle and high purpose. This is likely to attract the substantial support of those in high places, whereas swerving from worthy and time-honored systems and methods to indulge in erratic, eccentric or unorthodox tactics may forfeit this collaboration. Cultivate this friendliness but shun indulgence and extravagances.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of desired success, with progress, advancement, recognition and productivity, if they will persist in adhering to high principle and worthy purpose, with prudent methods of promoting them rather than eccentric, strange or irregular tactics. The latter is bound to discourage the friendship and approval of those in power and with capital, as would any form of excess, extravagance, over-enthusiasm or inflated ideas or ideals. Keep moderate, balanced and conservative and luck will follow.

A child born on this day should possess many characteristics for success and happiness but may be easy-going and good-natured to excess, being easily duped.

NEW HEALTH BOOK IS INTERESTING

Writer's Reminiscences Full of Charm

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

My friend, Dr. Horace W. Soper of St. Louis has sent me a charming book called, Health: Mental, Moral and Physical, Christopher Publishing House, Boston, U. S. A. I discern so much of the -personality of Dr. Soper in this, that it

Dr. Clendinging will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is indeed hard to do it justice in a brief review. A great doctor's power does not remain alone in the amount of knowledge or skill which he has acquired, but also in his wisdom and point of view.

Dr. Soper believes that the physical, moral and mental health of an individual go together, hand in hand. Sometimes one gets ahead of the other.

Medical Reminiscences
The Doctor has reminiscences of many eminent medical men whom he has known, some of whom were also friends of mine. I remember particularly the charming Dr. Walter Mills who specialized in X-ray and was long associated with Dr. Soper. Even as an X-ray man he could say, "A can of baking soda in a patient's pocket is stronger evidence of duodenal ulcer than the occult blood reaction."

Dr. Paul Y. Tupper, a noted surgeon, was once called to see a maid who worked for a family who had been his patients for a long time. The maid was too ill to get out of bed, but after completing his examination, Dr. Tupper said, "Mary, I really can not find anything wrong with you. What is the matter?" She replied, "Doctor, I have worked for these people for two months and they haven't paid me one cent, so I am just going to stay here in bed until I get my money."

Dr. Soper's Sayings
Exercise: "Stretching and deep breathing exercises can be carried on by the bedridden patient. Swimming is perhaps the best all-around developer of all the exercises."

Diet: "The high vitamin content of sauerkraut no doubt has contributed largely to the virility of the German people."

Shaving: "It all evidently depends upon the character of the beard and the condition of the skin. Every fellow must make his own choice. Personally I employ the thick soap lather, the safety razor with the new extra-thin blades, shave over the face twice, the second time against the grain."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. M. P. Los Angeles, Cal.—"Is it possible to eradicate fibroid tumor with medicine or manipulation? If not, what is the cure?"

Answer: Fibroid tumors can be reduced in size by X-ray. X-ray also stops the hemorrhage from fibroids. The only complete cure of fibroids, however, is surgical removal.

N. R., Calgary, Alberta.—"Please tell me just what is going on inside when one is hiccupping. What is a good cure?"

Answer: Hiccupping is due to a spasm or spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm. It is usually a reflex attempt to remove foreign or bulky or irritating matter from the stomach. Sometimes, however, it is due to infection of the nervous system. What a "good cure" for hiccupping is remains a puzzle. In severe cases I have seen everything tried—and all fail.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendinging has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendinging, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Rattlesnake, With Teeth,
Bites Man Without Teeth

PRESCOTT, Ariz.—A rattlesnake played a mean trick on Albert Rhodes.

An experienced trapper, Rhodes had heard in case of snakebite one should clamp the teeth around the wound and suck out the poison. Rhodes was bitten the day after he'd had all his teeth pulled and he couldn't bite. He went to a doctor.

OROVILLE, Cal.—Dr. C. B. Grigg's new automobile seemed perfect except for a mysterious rattle. Mechanics psychoanalyzed it, then, some one had a dream, looked under the seat and took out a Flint, Mich., milk bottle. The rattle ceased.

GEORGE BRICKER

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN
The yelping of a newsboy cut through the open window.
"JAP BATTLE FLEET SAILING FOR PHILIPPINES. U. S.
STRENGTHENS CANAL ZONE
DEFENSES."

North and Kilgour went to the window and peering out, saw that the even flow of Honolulu's daily life had been interrupted. Everywhere knots of people stood arguing over newspapers. Significantly, there was not a Japanese to be seen anywhere.

"This war scare's getting worse every minute," Kilgour commented.
"Downing Street will be raising hell, so I must run along and send a cable report on the situation.
This looks serious, my lad.
Isn't there anything we can do?"
"I wish I knew." The intelligence captain passed a quivering hand over his brow. "I've never been so completely licked."

"Can't you arrest Von Rentner and Duman?"
"I can, but what positive proof of the plot can I dig up on such short notice? Of course, they won't keep any around. You know I've got to have some documentary evidence, at least, to lay before the ap consil in Honolulu. He'll never believe me otherwise, and he'll undoubtedly advise his government that it's an attempt on the part of my country to back water. Tokyo would probably construe that as war, and the militarists would have more of a case than ever."

The Englishman crossed to the desk and laid his hand on that sagging boulder, with, "You've got until noon tomorrow."

Kilgour gallantly tried to instill a tone of confidence in his voice he said, "I'm sure you, . . . and I . . . will find a way out. Now I'm going to send my cables. If you want me, phone the club. Goodnight."

North remained hunched in his chair. His voice was thick and strained as he said: "Good-night, Kilgour—you've been a real friend.
In case we don't see each other again, remember that I'm most grateful for all the risks you've run in me."

Halfway to the door the English gent stopped and, in a perplexed way, asked, "I hope you don't mind my asking—but that Stefan woman —you're not, got the wind up over her? A sort of crush?"

North made no reply. Kilgour uttered a soft "good-night," and went out.

Captain North dropped so heavily to the chair at the desk that it creaked protestingly under his weight. How lonely he was here in this thriving city! The two men —he should have helped him were dead. He shivered to think of Jung Wilson Clark stretched out in the morgue. He and Teodora —both victims of—of this ridiculous international plot.

Sordid, that's what it was! Vile, reedy, and vicious—the whole affair. Imagine those two swine, Durant and Von Rentner, coolly and deliberately preparing to send senseless souls howling to . . . so that more money might clatter into their already crowded treasure vaults. . . . Brutal, that was what the human race was—selfish, treacherous, and primitive. . . .

"Nadia," he murmured while the grim lines faded a little about his eyes. "She is the only one who really knows—who understands."

With electric suddenness, his hand shot out to snatch up the telephone. "Fifteen—twenty-nine," he read from that slip of paper which Nadia had passed him at dinner.
Almost at once her rich tones answered in French. "Oui, mon Capitaine, c'est moi." She spoke eagerly, a little breathlessly.

All North said was: "I've decided to go with you. How soon can you be ready?"

He heard her catch her breath, despite her training, before she murmured in joyous, tremulous tones: "A gray-painted cabin cruiser, the Bonita, will be there at the Kallhi Channel Pier at twelve-thirty. Go aboard her."

Then, faint as the whisper of wind in a tall pine, she added: "Oh, Hugh, mon cher, I am so happy!"
Having reached his decision,
North proceeded to attend to certain details. Methodically, he selected a sheet of letter paper from the rack in front of him, dipping pen in ink and began to write:

"Dear Bruce:
"Since there's absolutely no use my hanging on, I'm going away with—you-know-who. I've thought it all out, and though you may not understand, I hope you'll try to . . ."

For several minutes more his pen flashed across the surface of the paper. After rereading the letter, not once, but twice, he signed and sealed it.

Next, being by habit an essentially considerate person, he wrote a brief note to Phedre Renois. No use letting her wait vainly at Wal-kiki Beach. By that time he and Nadia would be far away.

At precisely twelve-thirty, Captain North's cab reached Kallhi Channel Pier. How dark it was, save for the brilliant moon!

North thrust his head out of the cab window to distinguish a long, gray, rakish outline—a cabin cruiser with a single light burning at its masthead, made fast to the end of the pier.

It proved to be the Bonita. Two men in dark clothes got up from the bollards upon which they had been sitting.

"Here's the cab," one of them called in an undertone which summoned from the yacht a small white-coated Chinese who took North's luggage.

Was it indeed Nadia Stefan who awaited him aboard the Bonita—or? Well, if Nadia chose to make him another victim, there was nothing he would do about it. Gambling on the genuineness of her affection, he had burned several vital bridges.
Well, the past was past, and he firmly intended to keep it there. . . .

He noticed that the two seamen who were now occupied in eyeing him with frank curiosity looked thoroughly American.

"Okay, Jake, let 'er go," one grunted. "Orders was to cast off soon's the gent showed up." Exhibiting regular white teeth, this individual added, "You've got a swell night for a sail, sir; I guess you'll find the Bonita pretty comfortable."

North, who had been fully expecting to board a sinister craft manned by foreigners, again marveled at the subtle enigma presented by Nadia Stefan.

While the yacht's engine gave a preliminary cough or two, then settled to an even, subdued purring, North entered the charthouse and nodded to the spruce young men he found at the wheel.

"Nice night for a sail, sir," the yacht captain ventured. "We're always glad to see the moon."

"How so?"

"Means good business, sir."

"Oh, then the Bonita often takes cruises like this?"

The young man in the white yacht cap grinned and winked elaborately.

Smoothly the Bonita was slipping past the blinking lights of Fort Armstrong.

"They," remarked the helmsman with elaborate tact, "are expecting you on the after deck, sir." Accepting the hint, North made his way aft to the stern.

They? Evidently the yacht's captain had been super-tactful for North could distinguish only one figure yonder. Soon he halted by her chair. She arose, then, as naturally as though he had done so a thousand times, Hugh North took her into his arms. From that brief instant, his doubts and fears dissipated. . . . Gradually the lights of Honolulu receded.

North had led Nadia to the settee which commanded a view of Oahu, delicately silvery by the tropic moonlight.

"That's not Oahu," Nadia murmured. "It must be Avalon—and ahead of us lie the Hesperides—the Isles of the Blest—Oh, mon ami!"

Nadia turned aside from her tender watching of Hugh's profile. "I hope you are not sorry that you've come with me. You—your safety has come to mean so much."

"I am not!" said he with that fierceness of one who seeks to convince himself. "I'm so glad, I'm almost terrified. I'm glad, too, that our coming together could be so perfectly exquisite. Look at that—" he pointed to phosphorus in the broad wake of the Bonita.

"You're not looking—what is it?"
he demanded when he noted that Nadia had been looking off to port.

"Nothing, beloved, nothing," she whispered. "All our worries and our fears lie astern in that beautiful exciting city."

That was very fine and picturesque, but . . . North wondered if there was not an almost invisible white streak running a course parallel . . . a white streak that might be caused by a boat cruising without lights!

Said Nadia Stefan next day as she plucked still another golden cluster of bell-shaped floribundo and thoughtfully arranged it against a background of bird-of-paradise flowers: "This is the loveliest place I have ever seen!"

And Captain North agreed with,
"Kauai, mon cher, is another bit of heaven which fell from out the sky one day."

Mercifully, her mood changed and, with head on his shoulder, she said: "Do you know? It is so beautiful here I think I would like always to live and then to die here.
Oh, Hugh, you do think the world
well lost—don't you?"

For answer he swept her with unconscious roughness into his arms and kissed her fiercely.

"It's unbelievable—I never thought I could be so happy," Hugh suddenly remarked a little later. "I can't imagine what's come over me during the last ten hours."

"Ten hours?"

"It's only that we've been away from Honolulu."

"And we're not going back for ever so long," she cried pearly.
"Come along, let's go down to the wharf."

To Get Pay, Senators Must Sign Oath of Loyalty

Under a new legislative appropriation act stipulating that none of the money in the bill shall go to pay the salary or wages of any person advocating the overthrow of the U. S. government, U. S. senators must sign an oath of loyalty before they can draw their pay. The general accounting office ruled that the solons would have to sign affidavits just like the others. A financial clerk of the senate takes the oaths of Senators Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, center, and Chan Gurney of South Dakota.

We Beseech You

The number of accidents on our highways is appalling; it is shocking the nation into doing some tall thinking about the loss of precious life, because of recklessness and carelessness in driving our high-powered, death-dealing autos.

But there is one loss seldom if ever thought about even by Christian people.

What assurance have they that "sudden death" lurking on all our highways will not grasp them some Sunday that they break God's plain and holy command: "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

What would happen to their souls, if they were cut down right in the midst of breaking God's command about His Holy day? Their minister would be hard put to it to comfort their loving survivors, but say what he will, he could not cast from his soul the horrible suspicion that they swiftly were torn from this world with their souls lost.

Why take that fool-chance? Every Sunday before pleasing self attend church service.

PLAY CLOTHES FOR FARMERETTES ARE INTRIGUING

Left, powder blue gingham shorts with collarless jacket; center, blue linen dress topped by striped pinafore; right, cocoa brown slacks and bra.

With high food prices and the general idea that everyone must busy themselves with some constructive work these days, women are going back to the soil in a big way. Amateur gardeners demand workmanlike and intriguing looking clothes whether they own large estates, a few acres, a deep back yard, are the proud possessors of honest-to-goodness farms, or merely till a porch or window box. And dress designers are not disappointing them. Lucile Fairbanks is modeling a playsuit, left, and a slacks suit, right. The short suit is made of a new powder blue of soft gingham piped in navy, and topped by a well-cut, collarless jacket with a large brown padded snail set on the left pocket. The trimly-cut slacks are cocoa brown, and with them are worn a bra top with flared shoulder straps and wide-brimmed brown straw hat. Joan Leslie models the pinafore suit, center. The dress is blue linen and is topped with a blue and white striped pinafore apron and sunbonnet of matching fabric.

Salem Poloists Lose Bitterly Fought Tilt To Alliance, 14-12

VISITORS TRAIL UNTIL 5TH; RALLY BRINGS VICTORY

Eight Fouls Chalked Up In Rough Game; Akron Team Here Sunday

The Salem Polo club suffered its second straight setback of the season yesterday, losing a fast, bitterly-fought contest to the Alliance riders, 14-12, at Coy field.

The visitors, trailing by three goals at the end of four chukkers, staged a brilliant four-goal rally in the fifth period to take the lead and hang up the winning points. Salem had held the edge throughout the game until that point.

Rough Contest
The melee was a rough and tumble affair all the way, with a total of eight fouls being chalked up, seven against Alliance, one against Salem.

Stahl, hard riding No. 4 on the Alliance club, after being thrown from his horse in the first chukker, was thrown clear out of the game in the sixth, by Referee Jack Hendricks, for unbecoming conduct.

The Salem play was sparked by Jim Pidgeon, who scored five goals, and the excellent offensive and defensive play of Tony Sheen.

The visitors opened the scoring in the first 10 seconds with a goal by Owen Lewis and then Salem broke into the scoring with goals by Mott and Votaw.

Pidgeon added two more, followed by two by Owen Lewis, who was the big gun of the Alliance attack. Stahl concluded the first chukker scoring with a long shot from the 50-yard line. Following up, he roared down the field to the goal, collided with Tony Sheen and was dumped from his mount. After badly shaken up, he resumed play a few minutes later.

Nosed Out In Fifth
The Salem riders held their lead until the fifth chukker, when Alliance rallied to score four goals while the Salem horsemen, lacking the fire they had shown previously, went scoreless.

Alliance tallied two more in the sixth and this same chukker saw a spirited Salem rally which, however, produced only one goal to close the count at 14-12.

The Salem club will face the Akron Bar K Cowboys Sunday afternoon at Coy field.

The lineup:
SALEM: Mott, No. 1, O. Lewis, Pidgeon, No. 2, B. Lewis, Votaw, No. 3, Murphy, Sheen, No. 4, Stahl.
Spares—Salem, Smith; Alliance, M. Lewis, Fryan.
Goals—Mott, Pidgeon 5, Votaw 2, Sheen 2, Smith 2, O. Lewis 5, Murphy 4, Stahl 4, Fryan.

Indians Battle Palefaces In 450-Mile Canoe Race

MINNEAPOLIS, July 3.—(The Special News Service)—Over the stream their forefathers named "Father of Waters," modern Indians will vie with paleface competitors beginning Saturday (July 5) in a backbreaking 450-mile canoe race for gold and glory.

It's a feature of the summer carnival called the Aquaticennial. In picking the tortuous river from Bemidji, Minn., to Minneapolis to stage an annual event to test men's skill as a fitting opener for the carnival, the sponsors almost chose too well. If last year's inaugural was a fair sample.

The big river is tougher from a canoeing viewpoint than in early days, for the stream has been cut up by power dams. That means back water, conflicting channels and brutal portages.
So they got their endurance test, a night. They got out some hospital cases from blood poisoning, maimed hands, sunstroke and sheer exhaustion.

Soften Up Race
So they have softened the race by marking the course, providing food, lodging and a trainer to treat bumps, shock, blisters, insect bites, cramp, muscles, and other ailments for the "ten days of hades."
Last year's initial run approached catastrophe several times. Canoes upset crossing storm-swept Lake Winnibigoshish. Two crews were missing for several hours.
Judges trying to keep track of the contestants had many other harrowing hours because they lost sight of several teams in winding through swampy areas. Lack of communication in the isolated headwater country region also heightened the apprehension.

Promoters now realize they attempted something altogether too difficult. They are just grateful that consequences were not tragic.

Temperatures ranged upward to 110 degrees. Violent storms lashed the contestants. Insects plagued them.
Down the stretch it was a finish fight between brothers, Ace and Ed Ellason; Grand Rapids, Minn., woodsmen and guides. They fought it out with Chippewa Indian brothers from Ballclub, Minn., Harry and Bud Tibbets. The white men won in the last five miles.

Variety of Contenders
Back are coming those toughened guides, too, although college boys, factory workers and clerks will be on hand to make a bid for fame and cash and test those merciless pulls along 19 hour stretches and daily distances ranging upward to 89 miles.
There will be more Indians than last year, Indians hearing about the $2,000 in cash prizes and tons of

LEGION BASEBALL PLAY TO RESUME

After a week's layoff during the holiday period American Legion baseball teams will resume play Monday.
The West Seniors and Juniors will collide with the East Seniors and Juniors at Centennial park. Play will begin at 9 a. m.

clothing and equipment, plus sponsors' play. The red men spiced the race last year by tantalizing the plodding whites who told how the Indians would disappear in the marsh areas, slip away in the reeds, on short cuts and re-appear miles down the river, far ahead of the pack.

The Chippewas enjoyed the contest, particularly when the palefaces got trapped in the rapids. The husky greenhorns, capable in a park canoe with a blonde at their feet, tried to powerhouse their way out of the bad spots and snapped paddles like toothpicks, losing precious time and endangering their craft and even their lives.

The field this year will be more formidable and even some of the distant Canadians have heard of rewards available. There is William J. Fox, Bear River, S. timber sealer and self-announced Nova Scotia canoe champion, and Watson Peck, farmer-guide same address. Don Mathieson, log roller and guide, and Cleo Gaudry, resort operator, both from Kenora, Ontario, will comprise another team.

The contestants try for sponsors to help pay the freight. Canoes bear painted signs about everything from dog food to doughnuts.
"Yes," said Ed Shave, Minneapolis sports writer, who helped judge last year's race, "and I saw the time when delicious paddlers tried to make a lunch from a sponsor's food sign." It's that tough.

ILLNESS HAS ILL EFFECTS ON LIFE
PHILADELPHIA—Dr. Edward L. Bortz, president of the Philadelphia County Medical society, cites the life of George Washington as an example of the ill effects of premature retirement.
Washington, he said, first retired when he was 23 and while unoccupied began to worry about his health. He was cured by hypochondria with his return to public life at the outbreak of the Revolutionary war, but again became neurotic during his subsequent retirement. Bortz added.

Washington "regained himself" only when elected president, Bortz said.

LAKERS CAPTURE PAIR OF BATTLES ON HOLIDAY BILL

Tiltonville Bows, 6 to 2, And 2 to 1, In Tilts at Placencia

Lake Placencia took both ends of a double header from the Tiltonville Indians yesterday afternoon at the Lake diamond, copping the opener by a score of 6 to 2 and nosing out a close victory in the nightcap, 2-1.
Metzger did the twirling for the Lakers in the first game, limiting the visitors to five safe bingles which, with the exception of the first inning, he kept well scattered. Two of the Indians scored in the initial frame, but Metzger tightened up and throttled the Tiltonville scoring efforts from then on.

The Lakers knotted the count in the first and went on to add four more.
Metzger handed out nine bases on balls, but he kept his wild spots pretty well scattered and in the meantime, atoned for his free passes with 15 strikeouts.

The Lakers had tougher sledding in the second set. Pokron took the mound for the visitors and yielded only one safe swat, that by Carroll. Maley, on the slab for Placencia, also was miserly with his hits, giving up only four.

St. Louis Loses Two, Brooks Lead Today

BY JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer
You might think being in first place at the close of business on July Fourth didn't mean a thing to the St. Louis Cardinals—and you might be right.

They blew a double-header to the Chicago Cubs yesterday and turned the National league lead over exclusively to the Brooklyn Dodgers, who were kept in their locker room by an all-day rain which drenched the New York area.

Tradition Falls In '40
Tradition has it that the teams in first place on Independence day go on to win the pennant, but last year the Dodgers and Cleveland Indians came away from the fireworks in front of the parade—and everybody knows they finished second.

This knowledge must have been some consolation to the Cardinals in losing all three games of their series with the Cubs, who thrilled a crowd of 39,423 fans at Chicago by rallying to take both of yesterday's contests, 6-5 and 5-2. This left the Redbirds a game out of the lead.

The rain that washed out the Dodgers and New York Giants also prevented the New York Yankees-Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox-Philadelphia Athletics encounters in the American league and held total attendance for the holiday baseball program down to 134,114.

The Yankees had expected a crowd of between 60,000 and 70,000 for their double-header, which was to have been preceded by the unveiling of a monument to Lou Gehrig. This phase of the program was put over till Sunday, but the Yanks not only lost their big crowd, but also a full game of their American league lead.

Indians Take Two
The Cleveland Indians whipped the St. Louis Browns twice, 9-8 and 3-2, to reduce the margin between first and second place to two games. The Browns routed Bob Feller in the first tilt.

The Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers divided the other American league games, the Sox taking the first 3-2, Detroit the second, 10-6.

In the other National league action Boston snapped the Phillies twice and Cincinnati divided with Pittsburgh. Bucky Walters pitched the Reds to a 6-0 shutout in the opener and Vince DiMaggio settled the nightcap 6-4, in favor of the Pirates with a three-run homer off Monte Pearson in the fourth.

Manny Slavo pitched six-hit ball for the Braves in breaking his 10-game losing streak with a 4-3 verdict. Jim Tobin did even better with a two-hit masterpiece in coping with the second, 2-0.

Eagles Play Sunday
The Eagles softball team will play the Akron Eagles at 2 p. m. Sunday at Centennial park. All players are asked to report at the club at 1:30.

FURNACE DEFEATS SAXONS, DRISCOLL TEAM DOWNS SWOC

Baptists Forfeit Game To Presbyterians In Class B

Pounding out 10 safe swats, Electric Furnace drubbed the Saxons, 9 to 3, in Class A tilt at Centennial park Thursday evening, while the Driscollwoods took over the SWOC, 5 to 2.

Buckman collected a homer and a triple in three times up while a teammate, Sidinger, also laced out a four-base clout. Griffith, twirling for the winners, aided in the victory with three hits out of three times up.

It was a good day for pitcher-sluggers. Twirler Linder of the Saxons also socked out three safeties in as many times at the plate.

Mike Oana contributed a circuit blow to the SWOC hitting but it wasn't enough and the Driscolls, scoring in the second, fourth and sixth, finished ahead by a three-run margin.
The Baptists forfeited to the Presbyterians in a Class B game.

MAX CAPLAN BAGS PAR 70, SETS PACE IN FLAG TOURNEY

Joe Kelley, With 76, Second In Holiday Event At Golf Club

The Fourth of July holiday touched off plenty of fireworks at the Salem Golf club, with Max Caplan shooting a sparkling par 70 in the first division of the flag tournament and Joe Kelley, who finished on Max's heels, cracking out a sizzling 76, just six over even figures.

Their performances highlighted the day's mashe welding, in which approximately 100 golfers took part.
Caplan finished with a net 69 in the flag tourney first division, with a 250-yard drive off the 19th hole. Kelley, with a 5-handicap, finished with a net 71, 18 inches from No. 18 cup. Each had three birdies over the 18 holes, Caplan clipping par on 3, 5 and 7; Kelley on 2, 3 and 6.

29 FIREMEN HURT IN GOTHAM BLAZE

Hurled by Backdrafts from Roaring Fire On Lower Broadway

NEW YORK, July 5.—Twenty-nine firemen were injured today in fighting a 2½-hour roaring blaze in a brick building on lower Broadway.

They were hurled across the street by two blasts—backdrafts—of smoke and flames that broke the early morning silence of the financial district like major explosions.

Heavy steel-shuttered windows popped like corks from the six-story building housing Modell's sporting goods store on lower Broadway between Fulton and John streets as firemen responding to four alarms crashed in a vestibule door.

The flames, which firemen believed started in the tightly-shut building Thursday night and gained potential force between then and 4 a. m. today, shot through the structure's roof and spread to the seventh floor of an adjacent building.

Witnesses said the flames licked as high as 22 stories, sighting this height on nearby taller buildings.

The sound of the two backdrafts—most dreaded hazard in battling a blaze—sounded like explosion, and the bomb squad was on hand to investigate, but reported no evidence of a bomb.

So great was the force of the blasts that they literally picked up the firemen and hurled them about 30 feet across Broadway, depositing them on the sidewalk or against the facade of the American Telephone and Telegraph building.
